Honor Given To Maynard Chalice and Paten Go To Faith Society

To perpetuate the memory of their beloved child, Joseph A. Maynard, of the faith society, who died suddenly on January 7, the members of the chalice society in the Boston district are today presenting a gold chalice and paten to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith at No. 40 Franklin street.

The chalice which is about a foot high and the paten about six inches in diameter, is inscribed on the inside of the base.

"In memory of Joseph A. Maynard, by V. S. Cassano, Englishman, Port of Boston, January 7, 1933."

In addition, Mr. Maynard's name has been engraved by the employees in a number of religious societies for constant prayer.

Investigate Mate Says Wife No. 3 In Polygamy Case

By MARY K. SULLIVAN

Should a girl fall in love with a stranger, then let her be certain that she checks back over her past before she marries him.

This advice came today from a Roxbury girl who has ample reason to regret that she did not let her the same course herself.

She is pretty Elaine Betty Morrison, willows 24-year-old blonde of Regent street, who discovered—but too late—that the man she had married already had two wives whom he had not relinquished legally.

WIVES IN COURT

In Roxbury yesterday, Elaine and the two other wives, No. 1, Meda Ashworth, 25-year-old Fall River housewife, and No. 2, Lydia Corey, of Grant street, New Bedford, saw Allen Proctor, wedding master, sentenced to two years in the House of Correction on a polygamy charge.

So there they were, with Proctor still legally married to Wife No. 1, but openly confessing that it was Wife No. 2 he actually loved—and Elaine, as No. 3, partially out of her field.

Today she told the Boston Evening American what she had learned out of all this.

TEARS OF WIDOW

"I never would have believed this could happen to me," she said. "I thought I was a fairly good judge of character."

When I met Allen Proctor, and all during the time I knew him, he seemed like a nice chap. Handsome, always well-dressed and well-groomed, he was also kind and considerate as a boy friend.

And it wasn't as if I had just met him and married him within a week. We went out together for five months and worked together every day.

I found out just how well I didn't know him when I received a letter from Lydia, Wife No. 2, telling me about her marriage to him and about her baby.

WAKEN GIRLS

"I'm especially those who are working away from home, can't be too careful about the men they meet and marry."

"I'm sure that any man who could fool me, and those two honest girls who were in court with yesterday, must fool nearly everyone."

"I guess it's a good idea to stick to the boys you know all your life. But if you do fall in love with a stranger, investigate him thoroughly even though it seems to you he would be incapable of lying."

"Here we are—Meda Ashworth, Lydia Corey and myself—wedded on unfortunate polygamy and tied up in police proceedings. We're always being out girls and not the type to get involved in scandal."

BELIEVED HIM

"And all this is because we believed a handsome, unrepentant man when he promised to be faithful."

"Tell the girls of Boston to be careful. It may be for worse in other cases, just as it has been in mine."

Lynn, Peabody At War Over Shore Area

Residents Seek Means To 'Secede' and Join Shoe City

War clouds gathered on the horizon today as Lynn and Peabody, for years the best of friends, entered an open breach over the proposed secession of the Lake Shore section from Peabody.

And, as the two cities battled over the lucrative tax prospects among the section's 2000 residents, the residents themselves were split on the move to make the 30-acre Peabody area a part of Lynn.

RESIDENTS DIVIDED

Some expressed themselves as entirely dissatisfied with their present allegiance declaring Lynn and not Peabody, held their business and domestic interests. Others favored remaining under the Peabody regime.

Mayor James F. McGowan of Peabody charged Lynn officials were influencing the secession action in order to benefit from the increased taxes that would accrue to the Shoe City.

Mayor J. Fred Manning of Lynn denied the charge, stating he had been approached by a group of the section's residents who wanted the Lake Shore section and asked what they should do to become part of Lynn.

BEFORE LEGISLATURE

He declared he advised the women to file a petition, which will come before the Legislature and a referendum vote.

Miss Grace Newhall of Lynn Peabody, who is Lynn's resident, stated her view on the situation.

"It seems as if we are in Lynn now. Most of our residents work there, we do all our shopping there."

DIFFERENT VIEWS

Mr. Henry Gray, one of Lynn's residents, held out for the secession view.

"My neighbors and myself favor the 'secession' plan. We are just over the Lynn line and seldom go near the center of Peabody."

But Miss Alice Lane of Lake Shore said she was "not satisfied with present conditions," she said.

Housing Charges Stir City Hall

Charges that under a recent agreement between the past and present Peabody will increase the housing charges for the city hall, 100 Old Harbor Village building, have stirred the city hall today.

The charges were made by the Peabody Housing Authority, which has been in charge of the building since it was built.

Mormons Start New Drive in N. E.

Fifty Missionaries Already Working;
Headquarters at Cambridge

Mormonism, which had its birth in this corner of the land 40 years ago next April is being revived in New England, with 50 missionaries already working in this territory and up into New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

New England headquarters of the drive have been established by Dr. Carl F. Eyring, as director of the New England Mission, in a two-story house at 7 Concord avenue, Cambridge.

Since last September, when the Mormon chiefs in Utah decided the slow but steady increase in church membership in New England warranted closer attention, Dr. Eyring, former dean of the College of Arts and Sciences of Brigham Young University, Utah, has been quietly organizing.

And by spring, he told the Boston Evening American today, he expects to have at least 75 missionaries in the field here, giving two years of his her service without salary.

1000 MORMONS IN N. E.

At his Cambridge headquarters, Dr. Eyring said there are now about 1000 Mormons in all New England and of these about 150 are in Greater Boston, including 12 Harvard students, two from Massachusetts Institute of Technology and one from the University of New England.

Each Sunday morning, Mormon services are held at the Cambridge Club, 150 Mount Auburn street, Cambridge near Harvard square, and the attendance is Sunday average about 150 persons.

In the afternoon of Sunday a Mormon Sunday School class is conducted at the club and on Monday night there are a number of social gatherings at the Mormon headquarters in Concord avenue.

Winning converts to the Mormon faith is a slow work, Dr. Eyring pointed out, and sometimes three years may be required before a candidate for admission is accepted as efficient as the requirements.

MANY RESTRICTIONS

Mormons among other things may not drink tea, coffee or liquor, use tobacco or eat meat except on fast days. They are urged, instead, to eat vegetables and fruits.

So strictly have converts been found in New England in the past few months, however, that it has been found necessary to open branch meeting places in New Bedford, Fall River, Lynn, Springfield, Hartford, New Haven and other communities.

"We have come into Cambridge," said Dr. Eyring, "to establish a New England states headquarters, but with no object of having quarrels with other religions. We are here with our manager and anxious to have anyone listen to us."

In the matter of pluralities of wives, that has not been practiced by the Mormon religion since 1860. At that time the Mormons were required to stop practicing it. I wouldn't say that at the present time they disbelieve in it, but they don't practice it.

ONLY ONE WIFE ALLOWED

"There are very few who have more than one wife today, that in Utah you may find some whose family string has all died out, but are now members in the Mormon religion who take upon themselves more than one wife are cut off from the church."

Membership in the Mormon church today is officially said to be more than 750,000 in all parts of the world, but mainly concentrated in Utah.

Joseph Smith, founder of the religion and Brigham Young, who was thought as a statesman, were both born in Vermont to birth.

Smith, killed by a mob at Carthage, Ill., in 1844, was both an author and a statesman. Young, who succeeded him in leadership and who was successful in politics, was killed in 1877, and had left 21 children, was a native of Windsor, Vt.

TOLD REVELATION

The Mormon church was founded by Smith at Fayette, N. Y., in April, 1820, claiming he had received from God a vision near Manchester, N. Y., the famous gold plates from which he translated the Book of Mormon, the Bible of the Mormon church.

The first organization had but six members, but it grew rapidly despite active persecution against the membership, this persecution including the violent death of the founder, being transferred into martyrdom and attracting large numbers to the religion.

Too Independent

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

There ain't anything wrong with America except we are too independent. Our stenographers will take no dictation and our salesmen will take no orders.

And big business doesn't want any governmental supervision.

Things are tougher in the old world than they are in this nation. Over in Africa the lions are practicing short jump for midgets.

Just to show that we are optimistic, we are going to have two world fairs in 1933, when one would be enough. Which means that Billy Rand will have a fan in San Francisco and a fan in New York. She will dance with them.

Fasting Dean Noe Near Collapse

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 22 (AP)—The Rev. Dean Noe, leading the Episcopal clergymen, called his warning strength today for his weekly radio hour lesson tonight.

He was considerably weaker and his audience expected him to collapse momentarily as he entered the 21st day of the fast which he began immediately on earth.

His condition seemed to have taken a serious turn when he made a brief appearance after his removal to the St. Mary's Cathedral in Memphis, which he was represented as being even more seriously ill than when the Cathedral Chapter voted approval of Bishop James M. Mack's order detaching him.

The governing body said it joined the bishop in "praying for his recovery, and in the meantime, everything possible to help the Rev. Mr. Noe and his family."

There's Life in the Old Boy Yet, by Gorry

JIM BRADDOCK
Jim Braddock lashes out with a stinging left to Tommy Farr's head during early rounds of New York Garden battle. Braddock's great surge in the ninth and tenth rounds won him the decision.

TOMMY FARR
Recovering with amazing vitality, Jimmy Braddock carries the fight to Tommy Farr in the ninth round. They are shown in a furious toe-to-toe exchange. The former world's heavyweight champion earned the decision at the end of their 10-round tussle at Madison Square Garden.

Braddock's Furious Surge Gives Him Duke Over Farr

Ex-Champ Behind on Points as Ninth Round Opens
By DAMON RUNYON

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The 10th round of the Braddock-Farr fight was one of the most dramatic in the history of boxing. Braddock, the former world champion, was behind on points at the start of the round, but he fought back with a furious surge, landing several powerful punches that won him the decision.

CROWD GOES WILD
A start of expression comes over Farr's face and he turns and literally runs out of the ring so that when Braddock goes over to his corner to follow the usual procedure of the winner shaking hands with the loser, Farr has disappeared.

Snead Repents They'll Do It Every Time For Quitting Golf Tilt

By JIMMY HATLO

PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 22 (AP)—The "Snead case" took its place in Southern California's golf history today.

The Pasadena Golf and Country Club members voted today to expel Snead from the club for quitting a golf match in the middle of the round.

"I'll never pick up again," the professional golfer asserted in a momentary fit of anger. "I had thought instead of trying to win the hole so quick, I would have done it in a more dignified manner."

Snead, who had been leading the match, was disqualified for quitting. The club members voted 10-0 to expel him.

Latest Sales Report
Shows Gain Over
1937 Figure

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The week's financial news was the most part steady and as we view it in retrospect the few items calculated to excite our enthusiasm were volume retail trade reports. All of which point out an opportunity to emphasize again the financial position of the retail trade in any such survey.

As pointed out here a week ago, purchasing power of several important groups is showing up good fashion and aggressive marketing is helping to bring about a gain over the 1937 figure. The week-end report of Dun & Bradstreet estimates that the retail trade's sales for the week ending Jan. 19, 1938, were 1.5% above the 1937 figure. This gain was attributed to aggressive marketing and to the fact that the retail trade's sales for the week ending Jan. 19, 1938, were 1.5% above the 1937 figure.

HEADLINE CHEER

The up-to-plenty of demonstration speeches on the front pages of the nation's press. The trouble is that the stock and bond markets can't seem to read. For inside the financial pages there is little reflection of the retailers' better understanding. Finance, however, and the administration. The reason why is that the market is not as keenly interested in the retail trade as it is in the stock and bond markets. The reason why is that the market is not as keenly interested in the retail trade as it is in the stock and bond markets.

INDUSTRY TRENDS

Industrious market trends make the editing of this usual paragraph a difficult business. But perhaps such a condition is our worst enemy. Better things to be the latest developments and low volume of the whole field is seeking a permanent low and that the market is looking to end in a slump. The market is looking to end in a slump. The market is looking to end in a slump.

+ + What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?—Micah VI. 8. + +
The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Dr. S. T. Achenbach, Congregational minister, Boston. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. T. Arthur Mosley, superintendent of Methodist Churches, New Bedford.

The Editor Says:

LAWRENCE, one of the country's leading textile manufacturing cities, sets an example which Massachusetts, New England and the entire nation might well follow.

Under the leadership of Mayor Walter A. Griffin, Lawrence's city government, labor unions and all business and industrial interests are uniting in a concerted offensive against Secretary of State Hull's reciprocal trade treaties with European and Asiatic countries.

Already planned are a series of parades, numerous public meetings in all parts of the city, a convention of industrialists, labor unions, business men, and civic and religious leaders, and a formal request to President Roosevelt to halt the destruction of American industry.

The purpose is twofold: To defeat the tariff reduction pact which Secretary Hull seems determined to sign with Great Britain and to induce EVERY AMERICAN TO BUY AMERICAN.

MAYOR GRIFFIN CITES

—and comments not only to the workers of his city, but to workers in all cities the facts contained in the first page editorial in the Boston Sunday Advertiser of January 16, 1933, which said:

"Secretary Hull, preparing to extend reciprocal trade privileges to England, is leaving the ground work for greater British prosperity at the cost of MORE DEPRESSION IN AMERICA."

"Having already achieved an industrial prosperity out of all proportion to our own, England is maneuvering for MORE PROSPERITY."

"She is maneuvering America out of its CHANCE for prosperity."

The same fear is expressed by Mr. Franklin W. Hobbs, president of Lawrence's Arlington Mills, one of the nation's largest woolen and worsted plants.

Mr. Hobbs warns that the pending treaty will bring "wage slashes, a reduction in the living standards of Lawrence workers and subsequent ruin for the city" if the tariff on woolen goods is cut.

EVERY WORKER'S DUTY

—is clear: he must realize that England is bargaining for his job and pay envelope.

With few exceptions, all workers have suffered because of the sixteen similar treaties which already flood American markets with the cheap products of Japan, Czechoslovakia and other low-standard countries.

No worker can afford to suffer more. With eleven million men and women jobless in the United States, it is the patriotic obligation of every worker to BUY AMERICAN.

It is also the patriotic obligation of every official in Washington to abandon free trade dreams and to discard not only this treaty with England, but all tariff-slashing pacts which mean more unemployment and more suffering for Americans.

"CRUEL AND NEEDLESS"

—are the words that Everett W. Stone, master of the Massachusetts State Grange, representing 45,000 members, uses to describe the sales tax that has been proposed on Beacon Hill.

In an address before the Boston convention of the Massachusetts Agricultural Fairs Association, Mr. Stone said:

"Although I am a real estate man, which group is supposed to benefit by the tax, I personally want to see lower taxes on industry and agriculture. I also want lower taxes on real estate, but not by such a method as a sales tax."

"I think it is high time that the red-blooded men and women and officials in this State consider the full impact of all these extra taxes which are appearing on the horizon."

It certainly is high time. The sales tax is made to appear necessary only because officials charged with the conduct of government want more money to spend. That fact cannot be denied.

Everybody, save possibly a handful of politicians, knows that if office-holders made a sincere effort to eliminate waste and extravagance, the money that our existing taxes are providing would be sufficient.

FEW WILL AGREE

—with Fall River Representative John R. Mitchell, who wants the Legislature to adopt a law requiring State Police automobiles to carry special identifying marks readily distinguishable to all motorists.

Mr. Mitchell's argument that a driver ought to be able to know whether he is being stopped by a patrolman or a bandit has some merit. Still it is doubtful whether it has sufficient merit to warrant acceptance of the legislation he suggests.

State Police work is largely detective work. Officers engaged in raiding operations cannot advertise their presence. They must outwit law-breakers.

Of course, Sherlock Holmes, famed detective of fiction, did rather well in spite of the peculiar cap and reading glass that proclaimed his identity to the wide world. But his success should not mislead Senators and Representatives.

There are not many like Sherlock Holmes in real life.

Paid in Vain

By
Nelson Harding

While the agents of the law withheld pursuit, the kinsmen of Charles Ross, retired Chicago business man, negotiated with his kidnaper and paid over $50,000 ransom.

This was done to save Ross's life. The kidnaper pocketed the money and murdered Ross, G-Men say.

If the pending Ashurst Bill had been law, making the payment of ransom a felony, the whole dastardly crime would probably have been prevented.

Payment of ransom to kidnappers is outlawed in other civilized countries. Congress should outlaw it here by passing the Ashurst Bill ONCE.

New York Day by Day

WHAT a vast storehouse the human mind is for innoscentia. Tucked away dormant for a score of years, and more trivial incidents will bob to the surface at the most unexpected moments! Jolly memories of which I have no particular reason to recall. Why?

The French with characteristic shrug call it le cas pas qu'on. I know not what. There is a beer concert hall girl I once saw crying in the old Atlantic Garden in Cincinnati. That was all there was to a girl crying in a concert hall. Yet I can't number the times it comes to mind.

Then a 25-cent dinner Ed Powhatan Glass, Harry Salsinger, the late Brad Holmes and I were partaking after the final edition of a Dayton, O., paper in which we were co-authors. The menu included a raw fish. Nothing particular happened, yet I often think of that meal.

And the pair of bright golden-haired twins who got into the day coach in which my father and I were traveling to St. Joseph, Mo., years ago. Maids in gingham and high buttoned shoes with the steel buttons latrined down the side. So often I wonder what life has done for them.

My idea of perpetual youth is George Armbray, the New York-California banker. He is fifty on the thirteenth day of 50 but has the vim and lound of a collegiate. Although far from the simper, he has a smile that warms and one feeds he means it. There is a distinct impression he is enjoying life to the hilt. And after so many sorrows, he is stimulating. A Scotch biological inheritance I suppose has marked me with a dourness. Anyway, I rather like the glad folk.

Don't misunderstand. I could wring the neck of the chronic twister. Those filibuster tongues never stop wagging. Yet how often the female of that species attracts the solid, dependable type of husband. Silent fellows who seem actually to enjoy the flutter of their mates. Grace Allen is not such a monstrous exaggeration of the particular type.

John Perona, duxen of the El Motero tribe, sent me a tie the other day designed in Paris to carry out the effect of close-tufted zebra stripes that form the deer of his night club—a dazingly beautiful creation in crepe I made tracks to my haberdashery in six shakes of the sheep tail to find out if he could procure enough of the material for a shirt. He thought he could and I asked for an estimate, and getting it dropped the whole thing like a hot poker. Instead, I arranged to have Mr. Perona's tie put under glass for the mantle in the front parlor.

I like to watch the wine waiter of experience in any class place. Few in the ranks of such servitude get more real enjoyment out of their jobs. If a patron knows his wine and has an appreciation thereof the sommelier is at once his friend and counselor. He will discuss the merits of this vintage and that at length and with great earnestness. And how he delights in the initial preparations for service!

Chilling the glasses with shaved ice. Twirling the bottle in the silver bucket to get the proper temperature, displaying the label with a gesture of affection, wrapping the napkins carefully around the bottle neck for pouring. And that most superb gesture of all—extracting the cork and holding it to the nose for a few ecstatic sniffs. It is a magnificent ritual and one the gallop of American life should not trample.

The gentleman flirting lightly and expertly wins a swirl of my cape. The few times I have attempted coquetry have resulted in panic confusion with blushes—tripping over my feet or turning to retreat and crashing into a post. Yet I have friends who can with a Jack Buchanan wink or come higher glance be talking easily to a perfectly beautiful and strange lady in no time at all.

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

Marriage is no longer a gamble in the old-fashioned sense. Not for a WOMAN, anyway. When a girl walks up the middle aisle to-day, she knows exactly what's going to meet her at the altar. The most distinguishing characteristic of the modern lover is his perfect frankness. Men are no longer "deceivers." They not only don't bother to deceive a woman—they won't even permit her to deceive HERSELF!

Often a woman will be more thrilling to a girl if a man would declare her a little, and pretend to be more than one-fifth of one per cent. In love. Just a trifle more emotional enthusiasm, even if spurious, would be positively bewitching to make it plain to her that she "must" love him. His eyes may speak volumes of his sincere, breathless, but he doesn't say it with WORDS! And when it comes to putting it into being, he comprehends all his ardor on a picture postcard.

Human Side of the News

FRIENDS of Dr. George Leitner, who died last spring in Brown, New York, tell me that this country doctor could have been on the staffs of the greatest colleges and hospitals in the country—so marvelous were his feats of diagnosis of surgery and healing.

His exploits have become a saga in Rockland county. Many are the stories of his naming some ailments at a glance, after famous specialists and laboratory examinations had failed.

Dr. John Edmann, one of America's greatest surgeons and Dr. Leitner's lifetime friend, will tell you that those stories are true. I cite this to personalize Dr. Harvey Cushing's warning to young doctors against too much "scientific medicine," and his advocacy of sensitive and understanding human relationships.

Dr. Cushing, noted neurologist, spoke on "Back to Hippocrates" at the 15th annual meeting of the Association for Research in Nervous and Mental Disease.

Going back to Hippocrates, one finds that medicine is traditionally an art. Its greatest practitioners have been humanists as well as scientists.

"The country doctor" is a subject which frequently has been ground through the news mill in recent years. It is still an important and timely subject. Rural areas throughout America are distressingly lacking in adequate medical care.

Many of us, perhaps most of us in the big towns and cities, are out of touch with the country. If the forum asked for them, it could get thousands of stories about "Old Doc Whoosey" back in dainton or Southville. "Why that old fellow—listen, I'm telling you that old watus could diagnose anything at forty rods."

The best specialists in Chicago couldn't find out what was the matter with Pete Johnson's wife, and when they called in Dor, he just said, "The stars are all alive."

The passing country doctor had a shelf of books and he read the medical journals. He tried to keep up with new discoveries and techniques, but he'd be out in the middle of the night driving his old horse and buggy through the snowdrifts, with maybe the years piling up on him, and he was joggling along pretty steadily through the day.

I remember the archetype of all of them. He had been bitterly abused by a croaking preacher on the Prohibition issue. He performed an operation on the preacher for tumor of the brain.

"Did you take out the preacher's tumor?" asked old Dad Mumford, the town mortician, who stood on the street the next day. "Well, no," said the Doc. "When I saw what was there, I just lifted out the brain and left the tumor."

No one with any sense will belittle the magnificent achievements of medical research and clinical science, as it goes on in the universities, hospitals and laboratories of the great cities. I do not think that Dr. Cushing meant to do so.

I have my own idea of why the country doctor is sometimes so amazingly effective, without these marvelous new techniques. I go back to Dr. Alexis Carrell's book of two years ago, "Man the Unknown." Here is an authoritative appeal to physiologists and physicians to "know the whole man," and not to rely too much on the infinite divisions of particularized knowledge.

And the old-fashioned country doctor did "know the whole man." He knew him in his entire human, social, ancestral, physical, mental, occupational and economic context.

Required reading for this seminar: The story of Dr. Ephraim McDowell, America's first great country doctor, born in Virginia in 1771.

On the wilderness trail, with crude instruments and a few opium pills for an anesthetic, he removed a tumor from the body of a woman. Outside an enraged mob was howling, with a rope around his neck, if the woman died. He lived, and he became a pioneer hero. He, too, was a wise man, and a humanist, who "knew the whole man." Modern physicians have been amazed at his achievements.

The Political Parade

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22. The obliging Washington correspondents gave Mr. Roosevelt, at the recent White House conference, an excellent opportunity to waft a gentler note into his beral blast against all holding companies.

That the President did not do so is less significant than might be imagined at first blush. It is not good politics ever to admit that you are wrong, even when you know you have gone a bit too far.

Mr. Roosevelt is a good politician. Moreover, one of the strongest traits of the Roosevelt family coincides exactly with this sound political policy.

Nevertheless, at the Capitol that disturbing gesture of dislike of all holding companies has been catalogued as another "Chicago speech," an utterance perhaps as unfortunate in its effect upon business conditions as was the beligerent first-shaking at Chicago upon the international situation.

So far as his conferences with big business groups are concerned, the sky is known to be Mr. Roosevelt's limit. As far as this there is no limit, and the whole field of controversy and speculation is thrown wide open to the most comprehensive discussion.

In this policy is maintained something definitely helpful may come from these round-table get-togethers.

But there is an increasing disposition in Congress to take control of the whole situation, and by some means, not yet agreed upon, to give a definite and a permanent trend to the attitude of government toward business.

Senator Bulkley, of Ohio, a New Deal Democrat, has reflected this psychological tendency. He has suggested that a "national council" of the country's ablest business men be created, presumably to work with the President, and with the Senate Manufacturers Committee.

It is certain, too, as indicative of the general in Congress to do something practical, at a time of great emergency.

Every committee in Congress has a right at any time to summon the experts of its industry as witnesses, to ask questions, and ascertain facts. No other approach to sound counsel is needed.

Plenty of helpful things can be done by Congress.

The amount of money that could be expended in bringing plant equipment up to date runs into the billions. The banks are full of idle money, afraid to go to work.

Take the shipbuilding industry for example. America stands at the threshold of a great shipbuilding boom that could put thousands of men to work. Mr. Kennedy's Maritime Commission has outlined an ambitious program of construction. A great naval building program is about to be begun in the field of auxiliary vessels.

There are not more than 20 ship slip ways in the United States today. Not one on the Pacific coast.

It is this policy which would free international shipping from Panama Canal tolls, and open new trade routes to American bottoms, would result in an immediate expansion of American shipyards, the construction of new ways, great development of Pacific coast shipbuilding. It would stimulate production of raw materials, and open a new field for the employment of skilled labor.

This is one of the helpful things towards which Congress has turned.

March of Events

"THE world has never had a good definition of the word LIBERTY, and the American people just now are much in want of one," said Abraham Lincoln in 1861.

This is truer today of the American people than when it was uttered 72 years ago. There is less talk in the country today of liberty than there is of a brand-new, imported thing called SECURITY.

It was a long time in America when the word SECURITY used as the fulcrum of a social theory was entirely unknown. LIBERTY, LIBERTY AT ANY PRICE, was our slogan.

The only security guaranteed by the founding fathers, and accepted as a matter of course by Americans for many decades after 1789, was the security of the right to achieve individual ends, each in his or her own peculiar way, and the security of our persons, papers and property from the encroachments and confiscations of dictators, bureaucrats and collectivist "economists."

Either we must shortly redefine the meaning of the word LIBERTY in this country, or be prepared to see it become the byword that it has become in Russia, Germany and Italy.

The late Eric Faure, who was both a famous French physician and a great thinker and writer along other lines, on his way every morning to his Paris clinic, passed the statue of the Chevalier Jean de Lamark.

He invariably lifted his hat to the famous, and now almost forgotten, precursor of Darwin, and when the spring came around he always had a wreath of flowers at the base of the statue.

Science is today going back to Lamark, and his "dint-of-wishing" theory of evolution. This "dint-of-wishing" theory asserts that all things vary by a secret and unexplainable need or variation inherent in all matter, organic as well as inorganic.

For instance, according to Lamark, birds do not fly because they have wings, but they have wings because they wanted to fly.

We see this Lamarkian theory demonstrated in the case of every man. You persistently, for instance, desire to learn Italian perfectly. By dint of wishing combined with study you will do so, but you will learn French instinctively if you study it intellectually or mechanically without that push of the EMOTIONAL WISH.

The mystical will has evolved the universe, and even hard-headed men like H. L. Mencken have said: "THERE IS NO OTHER OBSCURE INNER URGES." That's sheer Lamarkism.
